Rappahannock Cancer Center offers prevention, early detection, evaluation of treatment, assistance with diagnosis, initiation of treatment, coordination of treatment, on-going follow-up, symptom management and community education classes.

Physicians at The Massey Cancer Center of Virginia Commonwealth University Health System of Richmond partner with the Hospital to provide university level cancer care. The VCU cancer specialists work with local patients' primary care physicians, the hospital's pharmacy, laboratory and other medical professionals at RGH to examine, evaluate and develop treatment plans for cancer patients with blood disorders. Patients requiring radiation therapy have access to a van for transportation to VCU.
