The Poynter Institute's MediaWise project empowers people of all ages to become more critical consumers of content online. MediaWise teaches people digital media literacy and fact-checking skills to spot misinformation and disinformation, with initiatives specifically designed to engage Gen Z, college students, and older Americans. This innovative, digital-first program works constantly to address the ever-changing landscape of misinformation across the internet.

MediaWise's educational resources include online videos, small groups, and online courses that teach digital media literacy.
